INTRODUCTION

Individuals who do not settle in Turkey are defined as non-resident taxpayers and they are only subject to taxation on their income obtained in Turkey. In this context, non-resident taxpayer means person who does not reside in Turkey or who spends less than a continuous period of six months in Turkey during a calendar year.

This guide has been prepared in order to present general information about the properties and rights which are subjects of rental income, the calculation of rental income amount which will be declared, the amount of exception, expenses which shall be deducted from declared rental income, tax withholding in rental payments and the calculation of due tax for the property and rights subject to rental income of non-resident taxpayer's renting their property and rights in 2014. The guide also includes explanation with samples regarding the determination of the amount that should be declared and in which conditions the nonresident taxpayers shall declare their rental income.

1. RENTAL INCOME

The income obtained from leasing of the properties and rights which are stated in Income Tax Law is defined as “immovable property income” and is subject to income tax in certain conditions.

The liable persons of immovable property's income are the owners, tenants (persons having the rights to use actually), possessors, servitudes and usufruct right owners of the property and their tenants in the event of leasing of a rented property and right.

2. PROPERTY AND RIGHTS WHICH ARE SUBJECTS OF RENTAL INCOME

Property and rights which are subjects of rental income are defined in Article 70 of Income Tax Law. They are mentioned as;

- Land, building, mineral water and underground water sources, mines, stone pits, production places of sand and gravel, brick and tile fields, saltworks and their component parts;
- Large fishing net fields and fishponds;
- Component parts of immovable properties leased separately and all their installations, inventory stock and flooring;
- Rights registered as immovable property;
- Searching, operating and franchise rights and their licenses, patent right, trademark, brand mark, commerce title, any kind of technical drawing, design, model, plan and cinema and television films, audiotapes and videotapes, a secret formula belonging to an experience acquired in industry, commerce and science or rights as right of usage or privilege of usage on a production method;
- Copyrights,
- Ships and shares of ship and all the motorized shipment and unloading vehicles;
- Motorized transfer and draw-frame vehicles, any kind of motorized vehicle, machine and installation and their appurtenance.

3. OBTAINING OF RENTAL INCOME

Obtaining of rental income is bound to collection principle. In order to tax the rental income in accordance with the collection principle, it should be collected in cash or in kind.

3.1. Collection of Rental Income in Cash

Collection of rental income in cash states that the payment of rent in Turkish Liras or in foreign currency. Received cheques are also taken into account as collection in cash.

- Rental income collected by the taxpayers relating to that year or previous years is taken into account as the income of the year which it is collected in.

For example, if 2011, 2012 and 2013 rental income is collected in 2014, this income shall be taken into account as the income of year 2014.

- Rental income relating to prospective years which is collected in advance is not taken into account as the income of the year which it is collected in but as the income of the years which the income is related to.

For example, if 2014, 2015 and 2016 rental income is collected in 2014, each year's rental income shall be declared in the related year.

In terms of foreign currency, rental payment and gross revenue is calculated according to the exchange rate announced by The Central Bank of Republic of Turkey on collection date.

3.2. Collection of Rental Income in-kind

If the rental payment is collected in-kind, payments are valued according to Tax Procedure Law.

3.3. Collection and Payment of Leasing by Means of Banks or Postal Administration

- For residence, 500 TL or over for each house
- For workplace, without a limitation of amount the payments and collection of the leasing should be done by means of banks or postal administration.

Since receipt or monthly statement is issued for the payment and collection while using mediums like depositing money, money order, cheque or credit card by means of banks, similar financial institutions or postal administrations, these documents shall be accepted as certifying documents. Payment and collection carried out via internet branches of banks are included in the same scope.

The fine which shall be applied to persons who do not comply with the aforesaid obligations is 5% of each transaction's amount and it should be no lower than the amount of special irregularity fine determined for that year in accordance with the repeating Article 355 of Tax Procedure Law.

4. LOW OR NO VALUE FOR RENTAL INCOME

“Equivalent rental value” is taken as bases in case of low or no value for rental income. According to this basis, equivalent rental income principle shall be applied on the conditions of;

- leaving the immovable property to the usage of other persons for free,
- lower value of rental income of rented immovable property than the equivalent rental value.

The equivalent rental value in rented buildings and lands is the rental value determined by authorized specific authorities or courts, if it is available. If there is no renting determination or judgment for the aforementioned building or land, equivalent rental value is 5% of its real estate tax value.

The equivalent rental value in property and rights for other than buildings or lands is 10% of their cost price. If this cost is not known, it is 10% of determined values of them calculated in accordance with valuation of property provisions of Tax Procedure Law.

Example: Mrs. (A) gave up a flat valued 100.000 Turkish Liras to one of her friends without charge in 2014.

Accordingly, although Mrs. (A) does not obtain rental income, she should be supposed to obtain rental income in accordance with the amount reached after the calculation of equivalent rental value.

Equivalent rental value: $100.000 \times 5\% = 5.000$ Turkish Liras. This amount should be considered as income to be declared.

Equivalent rental value principle is not applied under the following conditions:

- Leaving empty immovable properties to other person’s residence in order to protect the immovable,

- Allocating the buildings to the residence of the property owner's children, mother and father or siblings (But, if more than one house allocated to the residences of each of these persons, equivalent rental value is not calculated only for one of these houses.),
- Accommodating of relatives with the property owner in the same house or flat.
- Leasing done by General Budget and Annex Budget Offices, by provincial administrations and municipalities and by other public institutions and organizations.

5. EXCEPTION IN RENTAL INCOME

If persons, who gain rental income from house (exception amount 3.300 TL for the year 2014), obtain income less than the amount of exception that is established annually, they are not required to be registered at the tax offices and not required to file a tax declaration to tax offices.

If the rental income from house exceeds the amount specified for exception, the amount of exception should be deducted from rental income to be declared in the annual tax declaration.

The exception applies only to rental income from properties that have been rented as house.

For instance, if there is a rental income obtained and declared at the same time both from house and workplace, the exception applies only to the rental income obtained from house, not to the rental income from workplace.

Persons who have to declare their income from business, agriculture or professional activities, are not eligible to benefit from 3.300 TL of exception. Besides, persons who gain rental income equal to or above 3.300 TL, of whose gross total of their income including wage, capital earnings, rental income and other incomes exceeding the amount 97.000 TL for the year 2014 jointly or severally, cannot benefit from the exception.

In case more than one person has the ownership of a house, the taxation of the rental income obtained from such house will be subject to 3.300 TL (for the year 2014) of exception separately for each proprietor. Thus, if the inheritance is not shared every inheritor will benefit from the exception separately.

In case one taxpayer obtains rental income from more than one house, the exception will be applied at once to the total amount of rental income.

6. EXPENSES TO BE DEDUCTED WHEN DETERMINING THE RENTAL INCOME

In the taxation of rental income, the net amount of the income obtained is determined in two different ways as follows:

- Lump sum expenses method (for other than those who lease rights)
- Actual expenses method

The selection of the lump sum or actual expenses method should cover all immovable property, which means that it is not possible to choose the actual expenses method for some part and the lump sum expenses method for the remaining part.

6.1. Deduction of Expenses in the Lump Sum Expenses Method

Taxpayers who have opted for the lump sum method can, after deducting the amount of exception from their rental income, set off the lump sum expenses at %25 of the remaining amount against actual expenses. It is not possible to opt for lump sum expenses method in the case of leasing rights. (For example, a tax payer who gains office rental income and income from leasing rights should choose actual expenses method since they should declare rental income from leasing rights at their tax return)

Taxpayers who have chosen the lump sum expenses method cannot choose actual expenses method before two years have elapsed.

6.2. Deduction of Expenses in the Actual Expenses Method

If the actual expenses method is chosen, following actual expenses can be deducted from the gross amount of rental income:

- Lighting, heating, water and elevator expenses paid by lessor for rented property,
- Management costs which are measured according to the importance of property and related with the administration of the rented property
- Insurance expenses relating to the rented property and rights,
- Interest of debts relating to the rented property and rights,
- 5% of acquisition value of one rented house for 5 years beginning from the date of acquisition (This deduction applies only to rental income of the rented house; nondeductible part is not evaluated as expenditure surplus. This deduction is not valid for houses acquired before 2010.),

Deduction of %5 of the acquisition value applies only to one real property rented as house. For real properties rented as workplace, such expense deduction will not be applicable.

- Repair and maintenance expenses incurred by lessor for the rented property
- Rents and other actual expenses paid by sub-lessors,
- Rent of the house accommodated by the lessors who rent their own property, (non-deductible part is not evaluated as expenditure surplus)

It is not allowed for taxpayers not residing in Turkey, (including Turkish nationals who reside abroad more than a continuous period of six months with residence or work permit) to deduct the amount of rents they pay in a foreign country from their rental income obtained in Turkey.

- Cost of loss, detriments and compensations paid for rented property and rights based on a contract, law or court decree.

Non-residents who have opted for the actual expenditure method should keep the documents showing the expenses incurred for a period of five years and submit to the tax office when required.

6.2.1. Calculation of deductible expenses in case of exception in actual expenses method

Where a taxpayer chooses the actual expenses method and benefits from the exception applied to rental income from house, the amount of actual expenses corresponding to exception is not deductible from gross revenue.

The deductible amount is calculated as follows:

$$\text{Deductible expenses} = \frac{\text{Total Expenses} \times \text{Taxable Revenue}^*}{\text{Total Revenue}}$$

(*) Taxable Revenue = Total Revenue - Exception for Rental Income from House

Example: Mr. (B) rented his house in 2014 and obtained 15.000 TL of rental income. Mr. (B), who has no any other income, incurred 3.000 TL of expenditure for his property. He chose the actual expenses method.

The amount that Mr. (B) can deduct as actual expenses will be the amount that corresponds to the taxable revenue of the total expense for 3.000 TL.

$$\text{Taxable Revenue} = 15.000 - 3.300 = 11.700 \text{ TL}$$

$$\text{Deductible expense} = (3.000 \times 11.700) / 15.000 = 2.340 \text{ TL}$$

7. IN THE EVENT OF LOSS

Any decrease occurring in the capital itself which is subject to income from immovable property is not considered as loss and is not accepted as expense when determining the gross income amount.

Losses arising from the expenditure surplus in the calculation of the net amount of income from immovable property can be deducted from income to be declared in the following years not for more than five years. There are two exceptions to this rule:

- In the event of any loss resulting from deducting the amount of the rent of the house or lodging paid by the lessor from the rental income of their house, such loss cannot be subject to deduction from the income from immovable property to be obtained in the following years.

It is not allowed for taxpayers not residing in Turkey, (including Turkish nationals who reside abroad more than a continuous period of six months with residence or work permit) to deduct the amount of rents they pay in a foreign country from their rental income obtained in Turkey.

- Non deductible part of the amount corresponding to %5 of the acquisition value which has been subject to deduction of income from the immovable rented as house is not considered as an expenditure surplus.

8. TAX WITHHOLDING IN RENTAL PAYMENTS

Persons, corporations and entities rented goods and rights in accordance with Article 94 of Income Tax Law are obliged to withhold income tax on the gross amount of payments made for rent.

Those people and enterprises that are tenants have to withhold income tax from the gross amount of their rental payments at the rate of 20%.

This withholding tax should also be made from the rent paid in advance for the upcoming months and years. For example; when the rent is paid in advance for 3 months or 1 year for a workplace, the total rent paid should be subject to tax withholding.

If tenants are taxpayers that their commercial earnings determined according to simple method, they shall not withhold in rental payments.

In case that the immovable property leased out is used both as house and workplace; the total rent is subject to withholding as long as it is used as workplace partially or in whole.

9. DECLARATION OF RENTAL INCOME

Non-resident taxpayers do not submit annual declarations in Turkey for the income from immovable property which are subject to withholding tax. In case that they submit annual declaration for other income, they do not include the income subject to withholding tax in their declarations.

Taxpayers who have only rental income from immovable property in Turkey will submit annual tax declaration, if;

- their rental income from house exceeds tax exception amount (3.300 TL for the year 2014); and,
- their rental income which are not subject to withholding or tax exception in a calendar year exceeds the limit to submit a declaration (1.400 TL for the year 2014).

As to the rental income not subject to withholding and exception (As the rental income derived from workplace leased out to a taxpayer in a simple method), the sum of 1.400 TL for submitting declaration is not an exception but a limit to submit declaration. The total income from workplace will be declared in the event of exceeding this amount.

Every member of a family has to submit a declaration on their own behalf for the rental income they obtained from the property and rights belonging to them.

On the occasion that minor and restricted persons are taxpayers; the annual declaration to be submitted on behalf of them is signed by their parents, guardians or curators.

In case of having property and rights with shares, every partner should declare the rental income corresponding to his/her own shares.

10. DEDUCTIONS TO BE MADE FROM INCOME INCLUDED IN THE ANNUAL TAX DECLARATION

16. RENTAL INCOME FROM IMMOVABLE PROPERTY IN TERMS OF DOUBLE TAXATION AGREEMENTS

Rental income from immovable property is mentioned in Article 6, titled “Income from Immovable Property” and Article 12, titled “Royalties” of Double Taxation Agreements that Turkey concluded.

Article 6 of the Agreements mainly deals with income from leasing of immovable properties and related rights, and provides that the State where the immovable property is situated has the right of taxation. Accordingly, taxation of the rental income from the immovable property situated in Turkey of individuals resident in the other State will be in accordance with the procedure and principles of domestic legislation of Turkey and in these Double Taxation Agreements there is not any provision limiting the domestic legislation.

Within this scope, for example Mr (E) who is living in Germany will be taxed in accordance with the domestic legislation of Turkey in case he rents his property in İzmir.

Turkey has a limited right of taxation from the rental income of non-resident taxpayers obtained by leasing royalties defined in Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreements.

Rate of withholding to be made on the mentioned income may vary from state to state in the Agreements. If the rate specified in Article 12 of the Agreement and the rate defined in our domestic legislation differs, the calculation should be made according to the lower rate.

For example, Mr (A) who is a writer and living in Netherlands, had given the copyright of his book to a publisher in Turkey. The payments of copyright fees that would be done to Mr (A) by the publisher, are subject to %10 withholding tax according to the Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreement between Turkey and Netherlands.

As the example above, the payments that would be done by the clothing firm to Mrs (B) who is a designer and living in Netherlands, are subject to %10 withholding tax according to the Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreement between Turkey and Netherlands., in case she gives the usage right of the models she drew to the clothing firm in Turkey.

However, in order to be taxed in line with Article 12 of Double Taxation Agreement, residents (full taxpayers) of other country who derive income or profit from Turkey, should submit certificate of residence received from competent authorities of their own resident country along with the translated copy of it into Turkish language which will be approved by a notary public or Turkish Consulates in that country, to the related tax office or the tax withholders in case withholding tax is required. The tax withholders are required to keep the certificates of residence to submit to the competent authorities on demand. In case of failure of submitting the certificate of residence, domestic laws shall be applied instead of the Articles of the Agreement.

The taxes that would be paid by Turkish citizens who are living in foreign countries related with the incomes they earned in Turkey, would be deducted or exempted at the countries they are living in accordance with the Double Taxation Agreement with that country.

17. EXAMPLES RELATED TO RENTAL INCOME DECLARATION

Example 1: Mr. (D), living in Italy, leased out his flat in Ankara and obtained 10.000 EUR as rental income in 2014.

Income tax for rental income of taxpayer is calculated as follows:

Total Gross Revenue (10.000 EUR x 2,80TL)	28.000 TL
Amount of exception	3.300 TL
Balance (28.000 - 3.300)	24.700 TL
25% Lump-sum Expenses (24.700 x %25)	6.175 TL

Example 2: Mrs. (E), living in Germany, leased out her flat in Bodrum and obtained 8.000 Dollars as rental income in 2014. She preferred the actual expenses method and she has no other income to declare in Turkey. Her total actual expense for this house is 1000 Dollars.

On the date of collection and expenditure, buying rate for Dollar announced by The Central Bank of Republic of Turkey is assumed as 2,00 TL.

$$\begin{aligned} \text{Total Revenue} &= 8.000 $ \times 2,00 \text{ TL} \\ &= 16.000 \text{ TL} \end{aligned}$$

$$\begin{aligned} \text{Total Expenses} &= 1000 $ \times 2,00 \text{ TL} \\ &= 2.000 \text{ TL} \end{aligned}$$

Taxpayers who have chosen the actual expenses method will not deduct the expense corresponding to the amount subject to exception from their income, but only the expense corresponding to the amount subject to taxation. Thus, first the total expenses corresponding to the total taxable revenue should be determined. Deductible expenses corresponding to the taxable revenue is calculated as follows:

$$\text{Deductible expenses} = \frac{\text{Total expenses} \times \text{Taxable Revenue}^*}{\text{Total Revenue}}$$

*Taxable Revenue = Total Revenue - Amount of exception for rental income from house

$$\begin{aligned} &= 16.000 - 3.300 \\ &= 12.700 \text{ TL} \end{aligned}$$

$$\begin{aligned} \text{Amount of exception corresponding to} \\ \text{taxable revenue} &= \frac{2.000 \times 12.700}{16.000} = 1.587,50 \text{ TL} \end{aligned}$$

(Amount of deductible actual expenses) 16.000

Income tax for rental income of taxpayer is calculated as follows:

Total Gross Revenue (8.000 x 2,00)	16.000 TL
Amount of exception	3.300 TL

Amount of deductible actual expenses	1.587,50 TL
1.587,50 TL	11.112,50 TL
Taxable Income (12.700 - 1.587,50)	11.112,50 TL
Amount of income tax calculated	1.672,50 TL
Stamp duty	45,30 TL
